PREFACE

TO THE READER.

Since the Preaching of the ensuing Sermon, I find that both it, and the Author have undergone various Cenfures: some object Viscassonableness against it, and others Distoyalty; and for this Reason, being not willing to lye under that Imputation; and being conscious to my self, that I never entertain'd so much as a Distoyal thought, I am resolved the Sermon shall shift for it self: but I am a little more concern'd to satisfie the World, as to its seasonableness; because even some of my Friends seem unsatisfied. What needed you, say they, meddle with such a Subject? why at this time? Could you not let things run quietly? and be content to Preach (if you must be Preaching) the Principles and Motives of and to a good Life, without medling with Controversies and Disputes?

I must confess, if these Principles, against which I Preach d, had no Instuence on Mens Lives, or were not pernicious to their Souls, I should be of their Opinion; but being convinced of both, this alone is sufficient for justifying what I have done. But I am resolved to be Ingenious with the World, and discover the true Motives that put me on this Subject. I found that one of the Clergy of Dublin, though a very Loyal-Person, for his Imprudent medling with the State, had been juftly suspended by his Diocesan and that the Peaple (who feldom know or consider the true causes of things) thought this Punishment was imposed on him, for arguing for our Religion: the tender Sence they bave for that, put them into mighty Fears and Despondencies, and made them reflect upon the Clergy; as if they must either decline the Defence of the Truth, which they value above their Lives, or be filene'd: I casily faw what ill effects, such Surmises might produce: and although feveral private Clergy-men faid enough to Catisfie the People of the falleness of the Conclusion they drew from that accident; yet feeing them fill diffatisfied, I consider'd, to remove their fealousies, was a work proper for one of an higher Degree in the Church; and being invited to Preach at St. Warbroughs, where there is generally a very full Auditory: I was glad of the opportunity of discharging my Duty, and fatisfying the People, and convincing many Roman Catholicks, who were then prefent to spy out our Liberty, that we had, and would take the same Liberty as ever to defend our own Religion, and to hew the Fallbood of theirs; and I have some reason to believe, that what I then delivered had a good effect on their Minds, both as to the Government, and the Clergy:

But I must further tell these Gentlemen, That whatever Policy may seem to be in being silent at this time; it is too mean, and has too much of the World in it ever to be expected from a Clergy-man, especially it cannot from a Bishop, whose very Consecration obliges him to Preach and drive away all Erronious and Fasse Doctrine, contrary to Gods Word, and both privately and openly to call upon, and incourage others to the same: Such we believe the Doctrines of the present Church of Rome to be; and while we do so, it is not to be expected that any Worldly consideration should prevail with us to be Silent; our Vows oblige us to the contrary; and the Charity which we ome to the Souls of Men, is a farther tye upon us, to warn them of the danger they bring on themselves by listning to such Dodrines, or persevering in them, though they have embrac'd them.

We are persuaded our silence in this case would prejudice our own People against Us, and the Truth, and flatter our Adversaries with hopes of our going over to them, and so consirm them in their pernicious Errors: Let who so will hold such Errors, Truth is Truth, and must be desended: And if the Romanists will but do as they would be done by, they cannot take this ill at our hands; especially, while we have not only the Law on our sides, but also the Word of that King (who is samous for having never broken it) to desend our Religion: and if they be angry for this, we cannot help it,

Truth is deauer to ut, then their favour.

We look on the Supremacy of the Pope, and his unjust Osurpation over Kings, and bis fellow Bisbops, as the fundamental Article of Popery: and it is required by the second Canon of the Church of Ireland, of every Preacher, to the utmost of his Wit, Knowledge, and Learning, to Preach against it four times a Year: And the Twelfth Canon further requires. That the Ministers in all their Preachings, &c. shall teach the People to place their whole trust and confidence in God and not in Creatures, neither in the Habit or Scapular of any Fryer, or in Hallowed Beads, Medals, Relicks, or fuch like Trumperies. And while thefe Canons fland in force, we will, we must do our Duty according to them; and the Government would have just reason to take notice of us if we bould omit it : And till I fee better rea-Jons, then I have yet heard, I must think my Sermon a very scasonable intimation of our resolution of being true and steady to our Laws, Oaths and Duties, and that it will be impossible to withdraw us from those Principles of Religion which we profess, and upon frist and diligent examination know, not only to be true, but necessary also, even in such a degree as to concern the Salvation of Mankind.

And let the Romanists take it as they please, they must expect a great many such, and blame themselves that this eloes now appear in Print: Because the false representation they made of what was then said, both made this Publication of it necessary; and these two following Letters written to me on that occasion hath convinced me of that necessity.

My very good Lord,

Our Lordships late Sermon, Preach'd at St. War-broughs Church in Dublin, has given me an occasion of representing the several Censures upon it to your Lordship, and withal of freely communicating my thoughts to you concerning it. The Gentlemen, who would pass for the only Catholicks in the World, censure it as disloyal, and tending to Sedition; the Phanaticks are offended because you boldly tell them the Truth, and say the blame of our present missortunes (where it is justly chargeable) at their doors: and there is a third fort of Men, whom I may call the Politicians of the Age, that do not condemn, but only censure some things in it as unseasonable, and not fit to be Spoken in these times.

It was my misfortune not to be present at the Delivery of it; but however, upon the experience of above thirty years acquaintance with your Lordship, I can vouch as much for your Loyalty as my own, and do really in my Conscience acquit you from any design of Influencing the People; and when I reflect upon the saying of St. Paul, Gal. 1.10. If I please Men, I should not be the Servant of Christ. I am well assured, you discharged a good Conscience towards God; because you have been so little Sollicitous to Study the Satisfaction of the World.

However, because so many various Censures are past upon is already, and neither you nor I can foresee what misconstructions may be made of it for the suture; and because some things are reported of ir, which I hear, were not delivered, to your prejudice; I think you cannot do your self, nor your Sermon greater justice, than to expose it to the publick view of the World, and let it plead its canse against all Gainsayers: by this you will have an apportunity of vindicating your Loyalty against the Exceptions of the pretended Catholicks; your Prudence against the temporizing Politicians; and your Doctrine against all that are resolved to write against it? And I am consident, let them begin when they will, if you need Succours, the Cause will not want chose that shall assist. I am

Your Lordships

most Affectionate

Humble Servant

A. Midenfis.

This was followed by this Second Letter.

My Lord, Had the Happiness to hear your last Sermon at Sc. Warbroughs, and find by my converling amongst the People, that it gave general fatisfaction, and has done really a great deal of good. They imagine that your Lordship by your station and Correspondence under-Gands much of Affairs; and they generally conclude by your behaviour in that Sermon, That we are very secure in the Kings Royal Word. You would hardly imagine how far this hath quieted some suspitions Minds; and if your Lordship would let your self be prevailed with to make it publick, I am confident it would contribute yet more to secure the Loyalty, and quiet the fears of the People; and though this may feem unnecessary to your Lordship, it being impossible any one of our Communion should be disloyal, without renouncing his Religion; yet give me leave to inform your Lordship, that there neither doth, nor will want those, that having nothing to fay to it, as it is, will not fail to missepresent it: To prevent therefore them, if not to satisfie your Friends, I hope you will be perswaded to comply with the request of,

My Lord,

Your Lordinips most humble

and dutiful Servant,

W. King.

From these two Letters the Readers may see the sence of both Adversaries and Friends, and what effect, it had on them, and especially the People; and by publishing of it, I hope at least, to get this advantage, that our Adversaries will be assaid to missepresent surve Discourses of this kind, when they see we have so ready and short a way to expose their Lies: And less them rest satisfied, that notwithstanding their caustess heights, and the considers brags of some of them, That our Religion shall soon be suppressed; and the wheadles of others of them, by which they think to prevail with us, if not to come over to theirs, get to speak nothing in consutation of it; we both dare and will justifie our Selves and our Religion against all the little petty arts of Defamation or Calumny they can use against us; and that we believe the chiefest of their strength consists in these.

I have only this one thing more to add, That this Sermon is printed as it was preached, without any alteration; and that it is own'd as the true sence and real expression of the thoughts and heart of the Preacher.

THE PAULS Confession of Faith.

Ads 24. 14, 15, 16.

But this I Confess unto Thee, that after the way which they call Herefie, so Worship I the God of my Fathers, believed ing all things which are Written in the Law and the Promphets; and have hope towards God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a Resurrestion of the Dead, soth of the Just and Vajust. And herein do I Exercise my self, to have a Conscience void of offence towards God and towards Man.

Wo things are required in a Preacher, to be able to Exhort with wholesome Doctrine, and to confute Gain-fayers; the one requires Rhetorick, the other Logick. We cannot have a bester Precedent for this than St. Paul whom for his admirable Elocution the In. All 14. fidels took for Mercury, their God of Eloquence, come down from Heaven; and for the profoundness of his All 10. matter, he is stilled a chosen Volet, to contain the Mysteries of Gods Kingdom: for proof of this, I will only in-Stance ro you from the 334 of the 8th of the Romans, to the end of that Chapter, whereof * St. Aufter and * Erof. Doar. mus fay, that never Tully nor Demosthenes could speak any Annot, in thing like him; there being nothing mean or low in the N. T.A. whole; for if we respect the Persons, here we have God. Christ at the right hand of the Father, Principalities and Powers; if we respect the things, here we have Life, heigth, depth, things prefent, and things to come and if we respect the Rhetorical Ornaments, what Interrogations, gations, what Gradations, what Antithefes, what contraries, and what repetitions? for hat this might justly make up the 3d part of St. Austins wish, that he had seen Christ in the steel no surface Angusties, and St. Paul Preaching. But I need no surface Argusties, this very constitution with Tortulus is a sufficient demonstration; whereof my. Text is a part: for having clear'd himself from that most odious crime of Sedition, and evidently proved that the Orators Accusation was not only improbable, but impossible: he now descends to the other branch of his Calumny concerning his Religion; that as he was no turbulent Fellow, nor raiser of Sedition in the Common-wealth; so he was no server forth, nor maintaines of Heretical Doctrines, or Novekies in the Church.

In the words we have thefe two pares.

Schene if you would have acclear and perfect definition of St. Pauls Religion, little briefly this; A Warfbiping of one true God by Jefus Obrift according to the Scriptures, with a fledfaft endeavour to heep the parity of the Conscience unspotted, in hopes of the future Refueretion of the Dead.

But to proceed, and the future refuered on of the Dead.

Par Rithmon I is inuch objected against what I have faid but for answer to this, consider first, that Names was then but a Novice in Religion, and had not yet learned to deny himself for God. Lastly, we do not find that Names ever did it, but one dy feeling or fearing his own infirmity, he desires the Prophets Prayers, either that he mightness fall, or if he did that God would forgive him; to which the Prophet assents, and that only in such a form of speech, as is an usual waled form, as So in peace, or Gods peace be with VOIL.

There are two main impediments of this publick Confeffion of Christ, Shame and Fear. They that are affiamed, are duch as love the Praile of Men more then the the Art of Lying, the youth being of an ingenuous nature, ask'd him; how it was possible to tell a Lye without bluthing; he answered him, that a man ought never to be allamed of any thing, whereby profit may be had, And if we feriously consider it, 'ris strange that any Christian should be assumed of his Profession, which brings him to great gain, as an eternal weight of Glory. We have a common proverb, that he that is affamed of his Trade, thall never thrive by it; and its altogether as true, that he shall never save his Soul by Religion, who is ashamed to profess it. Tis confess'd, the time was, when Nicodemus came by night to Jefus, and when Teleph of Armebra was a secret Discipler bas it was when they were punies in Christianity: but when Religion was firmly rooted in them, they joyned openly in the honourable Interment of our Saviour; and thus St. Paul confest

The second impediment is Few in This couled Moles to finger at the Commands of God; this made Blille fly from the Womanish threeses of Jezebel, and St. Feter deny his Master. Fear is so had a Counsellor in the Ser-ful should depart ; and so imerous Christians are not fit, to Fight the Lords Battles : therefore 'cis faid, the Fearful, Rev 11. and the Unbelievers, and the Abominable, foall barve their Portion in the Dake that burns with Fire and Brimfone.

I never heard nor Read of a more resolute Band of Soldiers, then those Seditious followers of Cataline scheir Souls ditted from their Bodies before they moved from Saluft. their Stations; and the place they Fought on when alive, salini, they covered with their Bodies when Dead a and the Historian rells you, the reason was, because they carried their * Riches, their Glory, their Life, their Liberty, their . Yer neicher St. Panls Practice, nor my Discourse, does encourage any to run into unneceffary dangers; for he that loves Danger, shall Perish in it. To precipitate a Mans felf into needless Peril, is senceless Folly and to do it out of oftentation, is meer vanity: But when a Mans Profession obliges him to give Evidence for the Thuch, Ito be then neither ashamed of Christ, nor of his Gospel, nor fearful to fuffer for it, is necessary true Christian Courage. The Antiens Law of governing the Roman Army was reduced to two heads, mer fennis mee fingeres not too venisurefamly, to make a rath purfuit without need and when there was occasion, bor by soo timorously running away. to beeray the cause to the common Enemy; and thus a Christian bught not/to feek danger when he is free, nor to flun it when it is offered. Behold, fays Chrift, I fend you forth at hambs in the midft of Wolves, be ye therefore wife as Serpents, and Innocent as Dovet.

There is a time when the Advice of Gellins takes place eten:

even in Religion; that when the City labours with Sedition, 'tis not the part of a good Citizen to profess himself a Newter, but to joyn with the party that has right on its fide, and so help to suppress the other; and again there is a time, when the Example of Leonius Bishop of Antisch is more imitable: that is, to give offence to neither party; for Wisdom is justified of her Children. And thus much of the first thing, viz, the Concession, in these words, [but this I confess.]

Before I speak of the Confession, which is the next thing, I will only remark this to you; that St. Paul fire clears himfelf from being a Rebel against the State, before he attempts to prove the Orthodoxy of his Faith, or the Parity of his Religion: From whence I defire you to observe, that those men that profess never so much of Religion with never fo much of Zeal, are to be lookt upon as falle Teachers, fo long as they continue their rebeltious and feditious practices against the State : and therefore let our diffenting Brethren take notice, that while they in contempt of Authority oppose the establish'd and known Laws, by their Riotous, unlawful Assemblies, that their Religion and Profession of Faith is false and errone ous, and quite contrary to St. Pauls here in my Text which is the next thing I am to handle, in these words I sufficiente God of my Fatherry Beck pouldo noile lor

And in this I shall first speak of the Act Worship, and in doing thereof, I will not spend time in consuring that frivolous distinction of the Papists, of Larria, Dusta, and Hyperdulia; the first they say, is that Worship which is proper to God, the secondy which is due to the Greature; and the third of a middle nature, less than what is due to God, and more than is due to the Creature, and this (they say) is only due to the Virgin Mary. I know they have borrowed this distinction from St. Austine; but have much wrested it from his sence: For as they have added a third member to the distinction, (to wit) Hiperduline.

co il codvice of Carinos takes pinee

fo it is certain, that St. Auftin by Dahis did not understand any religious or spiritual Worship, which is only due to God but an External civil Worthip, fuch as men give Servine to Princes, Mafters, and Paftors : * a fervice of the Bo- corpora dy, but not of the Mind, as he speaks.

The Saints indeed are to be bonouved for Imitation; but lig. c. 55.

not to be adored for Religion. Neither does that Father iniden. fay, that Saints are to be Worthipt with an inferiour kind of religious Worship, called Dalia; but they express contrary; for we bonour them (fays he) with the bonour of Love Bonon and Fellowfip, as our Bretbren and Friends; but not with cor Chart Service, as our Masters and Commanders.

We dot deny that there are degrees of Honour : but ibid to attribute the least degree of the Service of the Spirit to any Creature, we abhor, because that is solely due, and proper to God, who only, in all times, places, and things fees, gu des and disposes of all, us, and ours. God is not mocked; and therefore will not fuffer his own express Word to be eluded with fuch frivolous distinctions.

But as one complained, that the Laws were like Spiders Webbs, wherein the little Flies are taken; but the great ones break through , fo we may fay of these Popish Subtilties, because, that though they cannot cast a mist before the eyes of God, and rational confidering men, yet they may deceive the poor simple Lay Papist; who goes on roundly to work in his blind Devotion, be poor man, must needs remain intangled in gross Idolatry. And therefore these Popish Ring-leaders are not unfitly compared to Bands, (it is King James his expression in the like case) who though they do not actually pollute their own Bodies; yet are a means of profituting others to all fitthiness. But I leave them and return to our Apostles [1 por bip the God of my Fathers, This Worthip is twofold. 1. External, 2. Internal. The external Worthip is principally threefold.

I. The preaching and hearing of Gods Word.

And as Preaching is the Ministers Duty, so it is the Peoples to hear? for bon canther believe in bim, of whom they have not beard : and where there is na Vafion, the Prople Perifo Faith is like the Lamp, and the Preaching of the Word like Oyl; and as the Lamp without a fresh supply of Oyl does go out, fo Faith does decay without Preaching : wherefore it is written of our Saviour, that when he found a Multitude without a Pastor, he was moved with

Compassion dowards them! 1 9 1111

The second part of this external Worthip is Invocation of his Name, and this is fo natural to us, that we usually life up our Eyes to Heaven in any fuddain exigence, even Pf. 50. rs. before we confider the danger, or confide our reason; and God commends us to call upon him in the day of trouble. and he will bear at. This is for prevalent that it binds up the hands of the Almighty of Let me alone, faith God to Mofest that my Winach may wave hot against them. No marwel then that St, James fays, the Proper of the Paithful avisileth much, if is be fervent, In a word, he that does not Pla. yg. 2. Pray, is an Acheift, for David faith, that only the Pool, who faith in his beart, there is no God, doth not call upon the Name of the Lord. I fear, if measures were taken of our being or not being Atheifts, by the frequency of our Prayers, there are too many amongst us, that could scarcely free themselves from that imputation: unless to come to this place once or twice upon a Sunday, and that too, more out of custom, than Devotion, and never to think more of their Duty till Sunday come again, does acquir them from that charge. But remember, God will be called upon; or he will not deliver.

The third part of this External Worship is the reverend use of the Sacraments; and let me tell you, they are not indifferent things, which we may use, or not use, at our pleasure; as Esther said, If I perish, I perish. There is a more Christian [If] in the case, that is, If we obey the Man. 2%. Commands of Christ, we must use them; for he sayes, Go Man. 26. teach all Nations, Baptising them, and take ye, eat ye, drink 2. 27.

Licurgus the Lacedemonian Lawgiver (to oblige them to a more strict observance of his Laws) made the Lacedemonians take an Oath to observe them till his return, and then took a journy, with a resolution never to go back again: and caused his Ashes to be thrown into the Sea, lest his People finding them, should think themselves absolv'd from their Oath.

And thus, our Saviour Jesus Christ being to leave his Disciples, obliges them to the use of his Sacraments, till his return, never intending to return again in humility, but in glory: If a dying Friend should give you a Ring as a token of his Love, and charge you to keep it for his sake, would you despise an instance of so great Kindness? How comes it then to pass, that we so little value so inestimable a Jewel, as the blessed Sacraments, which are the Badges of our Christianity, whose Value and Dignity does not slow from the outward Elements? For what is the sprinkling of a hittle Water? the eating of a bit of Bread, or the drinking of a sup of Wine? but from the Ordinance and Institution of Christ, just as a piece of Wax with the Kings Broad Seal stampt upon it, is of more va-fue, then a thousand times so much in the Merchants Shop. And truely, if we would be taken for Christ's Soldiers we ought not to be assamed of his mark, the Holy Sacrament of his Body and Blood.

There are two things generally objected by many that are called Christians, against receiving of it; the one is, that if they partake of it unworthily, it will prejudice them: Such would do well to confider; that until they put themselves into a condition of Receiving it Worthily, they cannot be in a condition of dying; and how dangerous it is not to be always for the uncertainty of this life does thew.

The other Objection is, That they are not yet willing to part with their Sins, to which the Receiving of the Sacrament obliges them; and therefore they will defer Communicating until they are Old, and have a mind to repent, and part with their Sins. Such would do well to consider that they may fall short of the time, they design for that Work; or if they should not, that God may not give them then Grace to Repent. And thus much of External Worship, which I told you consists in Preaching, and Hearing, in Invocation, and the reverent use of the Sacraments.

The other part of his Service, is, Internal; that is, the worship of the Spirit, without which all our Preaching, Hearing, Praying, Christning, and Communicating, are but like a Sepulcher outwardly, beautiful; but inwardly, full of corruption: for though the outward Form is that which approves us to Man; yet it is the inward frame that justifies us to God. Who does not like such Profesfors as * Hofea compares to a balf baked Cake; and Exekiel to a Pot, whose scum is therein : For God is a Spirit, and He will, nay, He must be worshipt in Spirit and Truth.

Some there are, who, with Efep's Dog, fnatch at the hadow, and lose the substance; that is, place the whole worthip of God in bodily Exercise, and external Adoration; as bowing before a Crucifix, in creeping to a Crossin running a Bare-leg'd Pilgrimage, in visiting the Reliques of the Saints, in hearing of so many Masses, in macerating the Flosh, in hanging down the head for a day like a Bulrush, in Crosses, and Candles, in Holy Waters, and Holy Oyls, in Pixes, and Paxes, and such like fripperies.

And there are others, who (like Lipwings, make the greatest noise when they are farthest from their young ones) though they pretend the greatest distance from the Papifts, yet come very near them in many things, and place their whole Religion in running through thick and thin, three or four Miles on a Sunday to hear a Man preach, or rather prate nonfence; in carrying a Bible under their Arms, though they neither understand it, nor draw any Inferences from it, for the amendment of their lives, and practices: In condemning all as Reprobates, that are not of their own Communion, and in applying the intricate and mysterious places of Scripture, especially such as denounce God's Judgments, to those that are not of their own perswasion. And if they can but prate like Parrots in the Scripture phrase, and sing three or four Plalms upon a Lords Day, and repeat at night the nonsence they heard in the morning; nay, if they commend the Preacher for bawling lowd, and making wry faces, and thumping the Pulpit, and holding forth for two or three hours, and preaching off Book fuch stuff as is impossible for a considering Person to write; they conclude they have worship'd God fufficiently, and that no more is required of them. truly though this is very far from being acceptable to God, yet I wish we had not too just cause, on the other hand, to complain, that internal Worship is too much flighted by us, and Prayers and Sacraments too much neglected; and that as in times of Popery all Religion and Worship was in a manner reduced to a Mass, so now amongst us to a Sermon, they seeing without understanding, and we hearing without practifing. Thus

Thus much for the first particular, to wit, the Act in which I have spoken of the external and internal Worthip due to God. I now proceed to the second particular in the Confession: and that is the Object of his Worship, the God of my Fathers.

Observe no Saint, nor Angel, no Creature, nor Throne. no Dominion, nor Power, no Heathenish Deity, but the on-Exod. 20. ly true God in Jefus Chrift. Thou falt Worfbip the Lord the God, and him only shall thou serve. And, See thou do it not. ch. 22. 9. (faith the Angel in the Revelations to St. John :) I'am thy fellow creature, Worldip God.

The Manichees worship'd two Gods, a God of Good, and a God of Evil; and the Tritheits three Gods, whence they had their Name; the Valentinians worship'd thirty couple of Gods, and the Gentiles, as St. Auffin observes. thirty thousand Gods; thence they worthip'd their Adulterous Jupiter, their Beaftly Apollo, their Drunken Bacthus, their Baltardly Afculapins, their Thievilli Mercury, their Bloody Mars, their Impudent Venus, and their Spiteful Tano: as Zanchy observes. And the Papill's have e-MADO TO VCqualid, if not exceeded, the Heathers in the number of their Gods, and their inperfittious Ceremonies, as may appear by the practice of the common people in thefe particulars.

> 1. The Pagans had their feveral tutelar Gods for feveral places : for Delphos worthined Apollo, Crere, Jupiter, Athens Minerva, and Ephefus Diana: And fo in Popery, England worship'd St. George, Scotland St. Andrew, Ireland St. Patrick Venice St. Mark, and Millain St. Ambrofe.

> 2. In Paganism they had several Gods for several Elements; as Jupiter for the Fire, Juno for the Air, and Neptune for the Sea: And lo in Popery, they have Agathus for the Fire, the Theadulus for Tempests, St. Barbara for Thunder, and St. Nicholas for the Sca.

> 3. In Pagamim they had feveral Geds to pray to for their Cattel, and their Fruit; as Pan for elle one, Ceres for the other, and Bacebut for their Wine: and fo in Popery they have Urbanus for their Wine, Jodocus for their Fruit, Wandelinus for their Sheep, Eulogius for their Horses, and St. Anthony for their Pigs.

4! In Paganitin Geveral Probellions shad leveral Gods to Pray to as Scholars Apollo, Soldiers Mars, Smiths Vulcan, and Hunters Diana: fo in Popery, Scholars liave St. Gregory, Soldiers St. George, Smiths St. Loy, and Shoomakers St.

Crifpin.

5. In Paganism they had several Gods to pray to in several Diseases; as Apollo for the Plague, Hercules for the Falling Sickness, and Lucina for Women in Childbirth; and so in Popery, St. Roch for the Plague, Petronella for the Ague, Apollonia for the Tooth-ach, Anastacis for the Headach.

Lastly, To these, both Pagans and Papists build Churches, erect Altars, ordain Priests, appoint Festivals, set up Statues, and burn Candles, as Musculus observes; they did not searn Commin. this Working was the God of his Fathers, that is, the God whom his Fathers Worthip'd.

There can be nothing more opprobriously objected in Religion than Novelty; There are a People who have made Eak 3.8. Laws of their own, said Haman of the Jews, and the Areopagites of St. Paul, Let us bear what new Dollrine this is: Al. 17. for Innovation diminishes the venerable Authority of Religion: and therefore it is the Politicians Rule, not to remove an ill custom when well setled: the very Names of our Fathers and Predecessors sway much; for the Woman of Samaria; you know, alledged the example of her Fathers against Gods Commands; Our Fathers, sayes she, Johnson is of the Jews: And the Gentiles excepted against Christianity, because they would not condemn the wayes of their Fathers; but keep to, and preserve those kites which descended to them from age to see; and the Here-ticks themselves, to gain credit to their Tenents, were used to say, so I have received, so I have been taught by the Fathers.

And the Romanists no not object any thing more malitiously, and fallly, to the ignorant amongst us, than that we had our Religion only from Luther, and Calvin, (which they themselves cannot but know in their Consciences to be otherwise) and that we swerve from the Judgment of the Primitive Fathers, and exclude our Predecessors from all hope of Salvation. But notwithstanding that they brag the Fathers are all theirs, like the Madman that challenged all the Ships that came into the Harbour for his own, yet it is evident to any one, that is but meanly conversant in reading their Authors; that they esteem the Fathers but as Counters, which at play are fometimes placed for Pounds, and fometimes for Pence; for where they feem to favour them, they commend and admire them; and where they are clear against them, they decry and despise them. Otherwise, if the Fathers are theirs. and if they would have us believe they are their principal Witnesses. Why do they cut out their Tongues with their false glosses, and expurgations of what they do not like?

2. The Examples of our Progenitors, or Predecessors, are no infallible rules for us to tollow; for we must not with the Pharisees transgress the commands of God by the Mat. 14- tradition of our Fathers.

Ferom. We must not, with the Jews, Offer Sacrifice to the Queen 44.17. of Heaven, because our Fathers did so, and it was well with Ferom. them. Why did the Land perish, and was burnt up like a 9.14. Wilderness? But because the people walked after Baalim, which their Fathers taught them. Therefore the Propher sayes, Walk not in the ways of your Fathers; and they follow the generation of their Fathers, which shall not see the light.

3. We do not make the case of our Fore-Fathers, that lived in Popery, so desperate as they represent it; for we do not question, but many of them held firm the Foundation, though much Hay and Stubble was built upon it: for though they might be forc'd by terror, or induced by fleight, to partake of the common errors of the Church of Rome; yet they might be free from its Herefie, and hold the Faith implicitly in preparatione animi, that is, be ready to embrace it, when God should reveal it to them.

4. God might illuminate whom he pleas'd by his Spirit in those times of darkness, when the means of Knowledge was wanting, (which is not now in this Sun shine of the Gofpel, to be expected) as he enlightned the world by an expanded Light before he created the Sun; which is since the ordinary way of giving Light; and as he fed the Israelites with Manna in the Wilderness, which he withdrew as foon as they came into the Land of Promife. For when ordinary means are afforded, extraordinary must neither be expected, nor relied upon: so that you fee there is a vast difference between the case of our Forefathers, and the case of the Papist now; who wilfully shut their eyes against the Light offered to them: When the ordinary means fail'd, God was able to fave, and did fave in the midst of that Bliminess, those that belonged to the Election of his Grace: But it cannot be therefore fafe for us to neglect for great Salvation as is now offered to us, upon' pretence of our Forefathers be-caprini ing otherwise principled.

If my Predecesfors, sayes St. Cyprian, bave not taught, or dit. Oxon. held, either through simplicity, or ignorance, that which our siquis de Lord bas taught them, by his Example, or Authority, the Antecesto-Mercy of God might pardon them; but we cannot rely upon fris, vel the like Mercy, who have so clear a proposal of those Truths, is worthwhich were concealed from them. It is indeed good man- ampliciners, and charity, to think, hope, and fpeak well of our ter, boe Fathers; but, it is both Wildom and Divinity, to look words, well to our felves.

Ep.63 .p.

I wish the Diffenters from our Church would feriously apply this to themselves; if they did, they must find their case much worse than their Predecessors, because they at once tread out of their wayes, and walk not in ours. I am fure this disorderly tumultuous way of serve ing God, which the Separatiffs use, was never practifed by any confiderable party in the Primitive Times. And tho' I will not deny but feveral National Churches might differ from one another in their Forms of Worthip; yet I never read nor heard of any who had not a Form by which they did Worship, until our modern Presbyterians. This one instance (I fancy) that they cannot pretend the custom of their Fathers, for what they do, unless they will own none for such that lived above fixty years 2. gon) might be fufficient to make them at the fame infrant to leave off, and forfake their folly. And I am perfwaded that there are not any confiderable Perfons as mongst them, but if they did seriously reflect, and calmly consider, how great a finit is to make a Schifm in, and feparate from that Church, with which they own they agree in Doctrine, and is Established by Law. for they know not what reason, but because they will. I fay, if they did think on this, and fadly reflect. that whatever the Church of England either has already, or may hereafter fuffer through Popery, is wholly due to themselves; for having murdered the best of Kings, and forc'd his Royal Issue to seek for fafety under great necessities in Popish Countries, and thereby exposed them to the dangers and temptations of the Romish Clergy, who never fail to improve all opportunities for the Advantage of the Church, or rather Court of Rome: I fay, if they did think on this, they would now at least, being to very obnoxious, for their own prefervation, close with us in our Communion, and not separate from that manner of Worthin which we give to the God of our Fathers, with the Apostle here on the Text, which was the object, and the fecondathing I was to speak of, and leads me to the manner of his worlder, which is the third particular, in these words, after that way which they call Herefie,

Whence we may first observe, that it is no new thing for Religion, and the Professors thereof, to be traduced: for Christ was scott at as a Carpenters Son ; and Christianity is called Herefie, and Christians Gallileans; and this proceeds from the innate. Malice and Ignorance that every Man has in him fince the Fall; which, as the Spider extracts poison out of the sweetest Flowers, makes the worst interpretations of the best things and actions; fo that if David dance zealoully before 2 Sem. 6. the Ark, he shall not want a Michel to laugh at him: 14,15,16 and if Ezekiah destroy Idolatry, Some Rabsbekah will not flick to say, Is not this the God whose Altars Ezekiah broke down. If Mary Magdalen pour a little Oyl on the Head and Feet of our Saviour, some Judas will be rea- Joh 12. dy to fay, what needs this waste. Constantine, for his 4. bounty to the Church shall be called Pupillus, one that needs a Guardian; and Theodofius for his piety Imbellis, a Coward: But as the Moon goes on filently in her course, tho' Dogs do bark at her, fo let us go on in our Religious Worship, without regarding the calumniations of our Adversaries.

2. Observe, That if we be morally certain, that what we profess is true, and according to God's Word, it matters not that the Papists call us Hereticks, and the Separatists call us Papists; Truth will justifie it self. St. Paul you see is not offended that they call his Religion Heresie.

And this brings me to the fourth thing in the Text, namely, the Rule, in these words, Believing all things that are written in the Law and the Prophets. God, who requires man to worship him, has prescribed a Rule for his direction: and lest this Rule might be forgotten and the second

from age to age, he committed it to Writing; for though the Word spoken be more estimations, yet the Word written is more durable: therefore it was that Moses was commanded to write the moral Law in two Tables; and that the Spirit in the Revelutions sayes write; and here St. Paul makes the Rule of his Faith, all that is written in the Law and the Prophets.

It would not be proper now to dispute whether it be necessary to salvation, for a man to believe all that is written in the Old and New Testaments, and therefore I shall only (for resolving this doubt, and many other Objections, that may follow thereupop) offer these few particulars.

1. That every diffiner femence of the holy Scriptures does command and require our Bellef as much as the whole, or any one part of them:

ing all that is contained in the Scriptures, yet if he refole to give credit to any part of them (when it is revealed to him as such) he cannot be faved.

Damnation, to believe all that is Scripture, when revealed to him; but he is also bound to believe what is not revealed to him in preparation of mind.

4. That we may and ought to infer from St. Pauls words in the Text, that the Scriptures are a fusicient Rule of Faith, and that there is enough contained in them, without any other additions, both for our Direction and Practice.

Yet I don't not, but that an undoubted Tradition, if we were so well affered of the study of it, by a general consent of all Ages, as we are of the truth of the Scriptures, has the fame Authority with Scripture; for until the means of Salvation was fully perfected, and the Scriptures

Scriptures committed to Writing, Tradition was the Rule to For St. Paul bids Timothy to take beed to all that he bad, received, either by word or Writing. And though we do not, with the Romanifts, allow Tradition to supplant the Scriptures, by giving it equal Authority with them; yet we allow much to an Apostolical Tradition: because it may be necessary, though not absolutely so, to the clearing and better understanding of some intricate and mysterious passages in Scripture. And this leads me to the fifth particular in my Text, to wit, the principal ground of his Confession, in these words, and have hope towards God, which they themselves, also allow, that there shall be a Resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust.

From which we may first observe. That Prudence and Wildom are confistent with true Religion; for you fee St. Paul fays, which they themselves also allow; that is the Pharifees, who did believe a Refurrection that by this means he might gain their favourable Opinion; and fo divide them and the Sadduces, who did denv a Refurrection. For God never gave a man Religion with defign to deprive him of the use of his Reason, and to make him a meer Natural: He that charges his Disciples to be as innocent as Doves, bids them be as wife as Serpents, and bids them to beware of men that will bring them into Mat. 16. their Councils; which shows that we must not, with the 10, 17. Donatifts of old, and the Quakers now, court the Lash and the Prilon, and feek for occasions of trouble: He only is the resolute Champion for Christ, that will neither for fear of fuffering, weakly betray his Caule, nor out of an ignorant Zeal, run into needless dangers.

2. We may observe from hence, that the hope of the Resurrection of the dead is a most powerful Argument to perswade men to believe, embrace and practice the Christian Religion. For when a man seriously considers that he is not only to give an account here of what he has done, and that this life does not fet a period to his fufferings, or rejoycings; but that he shall rife again, and undergo a new and impartial tryal, and be for ever determined to live in eternal bliss or misery. This consideration (Vay) as it will make every rational (not to mention pious) man to live holily; so it will be a great allay to his temporal sufferings, to consider that he shall have joy in the morning of his Resurrection, for the heaviness he endured in the night of this life: This was the ground of St. Pans's free and publick confession of his Faith: And thus I come to speak of the last particular in the Text, namely the effects, in these words, And herein do I exercise my self to have a Conscience void of offence towards God, and towards Man.

Whence we may observe, that the end of all Religious Knowledg is practice: for Christianity is an active life, it is not to make a wry Face, and to put on a ferious look, and to talk piously, and to breath nothing but Scripture, that denominates a man a true Believer; but it is an exercifing of ones felf for as to keep a clear Conscience towards God and Man. And therefore it is that St. Paul eliewhere exhorts to press forwards, and so to run as to win, and not to beat the Air. And our Saviour bids Mat. 3. 8. bring forth Works meet for repentance. And that we may do this, we must live unblameably towards God, our Neighbours, and our felves. If we be defective in the last two, we must also be faulty in the first; because though there are some offences more directly and immediately committed against God, than other; yet all are against him: For as much as they are transgressions of his Laws: And therefore we must make it our chief bufines: First to give him his due, which is honouring and invocating his name, acknowledge all we have to proceed from his free Grace; and make him as far as we are able fuitable returns of Praife and Thanksgiving: and as we must behave our selves thus towards God, so we souft deal uprightly with our Neighbours, we must carry Hony in our mouths, that is, not injure them with falle reports, nor provoke them with bitter language, and we must carry Charity in our hands, that is, relieve them to our power, when their necessities require it, not wrong them by Violence or Fraud, not exact upon their necesfities; and we must carry a good example in all our actions. And laftly, as to our felves, we must take heed that we abuse not those parts and indowments which God gave us to be instrumental to his service, by any kind of excess, riot, or intemperance; we must keep our senses well governed in great equality. The Tongue under the rule of discretion, and the Heart in a firm peace, free from all fenfual diffracting thoughts; this is the true end of believing: otherwise our assenting to a divine Truth, is no more than fuch a faith as the Devils have, who believe and tremble, and are never the nearer happinels: but our believing must include doing, and must carry along with it a conscience or knowledge void of offence, boil towards God and towards Man. And thus I have Spoken what I defigned at this time on this Subject, and fhall. conclude all with one word of Application. You have heard St. Paul's Confession of Faith: I beseech you examin your selves, and try whether you be of his Religion or not ; if you be, I entreat you practife it.

2. If you have a clear Conscience, you need not regard the salse reports of others; for though it be a missiontune to be undeservedly ill spoken of, yet it is a comfort that it is undeservedly. The Bird in the Breast makes sweeter Musick than the Praises of a thousand Faltterers. I am greived (saith a Father) that they speak ill of me, and asperse me falst; because they injure themselves, and not me, by their uncharitableness; for they cannot rob me of the pleasure which a clear Conscience continually administers to me.

Laftly,

Laftly, That all of us may have chisolder Confcience let us be fire, with St. Psulto walk by the Rule, the plat 19- Word of God: that will bais Santhornsa thy feet, andl & Light to the paths: and therefore do not imagine, that the carrying of your Bible to Church, and turning over. the leaves, and reading it carclefly, is all that is required of your but be fure you practile what you read, and compare your ections with that Rule, and make them conformable to it: this will make you not only Profesfors of St. Pauls Faith, but also partakers of his Happiness. where we shall see the Face of the living God clearly. and at the full, where the Beauties shall have no Veils to hide them from our eyes, our Beings shall have no end. our Knowledge shall not be subject to error, nor our Loves to displeasure. O! what an excess of happiness will it be, to enjoy all, and to defire nothing, to be a King without an Enemy, to be rich without Covetoufness, and to be ever living without fear of Death; all which, God of his infinite Mercy vouchfafe unto us all, through the merits of Jefus Chrift; to whom, with the Father, and the holy Ghoft, be all Honour and Glory, now and for
